The Problem...

Houston youth, ages 13-18, did not feel adequately prepared for an emergency or hazard to occur in their community

Specifically, they needed:

- Reliable information to better prepare for an emergency
- Better access to emergency resources for their community
- Information on relief/recovery resources after an emergency

The Response...

The City of Houston, in partnership with UNICEF's Child-Friendly Cities Initiative, worked with a youth-led committee to create an infographic campaign aiming to provide information and resources on emergency preparedness, response, and relief.

We'd like to thank our partners for providing the resources to build this campaign.
